White Lion Walk flies flag for family fun at Guildford's Armed Forces Day

On Saturday 27th June White Lion Walk Shopping Centre hosted a variety of free entertainment for shoppers to celebrate the town's Armed Forces Day.

During the morning the centre management team ran free flag making workshops for the town's visitors so they could show their support to the hundreds of personnel from the Royal Navy, Army and RAF as well as cadets and veterans who took part in the official Armed Forces parade.

Singers and performers from The Variety Collective were also on hand throughout the day entertaining visitors with war time and classic songs such as It's a long road to Tipperary, When I'm cleaning windows and Pack up your Troubles.

Furthermore, younger shoppers got into the family spirit of the day and were transformed into some of their favourite characters by White Lion Walk's free face painter.

Steve Cotney from White Lion Walk commented:

"We were delighted to take part in the town's Armed Forces Day. It was a spectacular event and truly honoured our country's heroes in style. It was wonderful to see so many visitors making their very own flags to show their support for the parade and the entertainment from The Variety Collective was just the icing on the cake and really set the tone, creating the perfect atmosphere for the town's visitors."
