White Lion Walk opens commemorative WW1 exhibition

On Monday 4th August, White Lion Walk Shopping Centre in Guildford officially opened their commemorative exhibition to mark the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of the First World War.

The exhibition features a stunning array of information, memorabilia, artefacts and family recollections from the war and a local touch is really evident as the majority of items on display have been generously loaned to the centre by Surrey residents to commemorate the lives of those who fought for us all those years ago.

Visitors to the exhibition can honour the fallen by personalising a poppy cross in return for a £1 donation. Not only will all the crosses create a stunning memory wall within the centre but all funds raised during the duration of the exhibition will be donated to the nation's Poppy Appeal.

With support from Guildford Heritage Museum, the exhibition will be open within White Lion Walk Shopping Centre from 10am to 4pm, Monday to Saturday from now until 30th August.

Steve Cotney, Centre Manager of White Lion Walk, commented:

“This year marks the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of WW1 and, as such a significant historical event, it is really important to commemorate the lives of those who fought for us and honour their unique experiences from all aspects of the war.”

He continued: “We are delighted to be able to host this exhibition for the town and are extremely grateful for the support received so far from local residents who have so generously loaned us some of their most treasured possessions for our display. We look forward to welcoming shoppers young and old and hope that the exhibition can contribute in at least some small way to honouring the brave individuals who battled for our country.”
