White Lion Walk launches nature appeal!

On Saturday 19th May, White Lion Walk Shopping Centre in Guildford hosted a very special Butterfly Awareness Day for shoppers both young and old, as part of their nature and wildlife programme of events.

To coincide with the national 'Save Our Butterflies Week' which launched last Friday and runs until Sunday 27th May, the centre provided a variety of both fun and educational activities throughout the day.

With a children's Arty Party workshop featuring 'make your own' butterfly masks and room decorations plus a free face painter transforming the little ones into butterflies themselves, there was plenty of fun added to the Saturday shop.

What's more, to encourage the residents of Surrey to help butterflies and nature in general, the centre management team also handed out free wild flower seeds to all their shoppers.

Centre Manager, Steve Cotney, commented: "We are very proud to be an environmentally friendly shopping centre and we work hard to help nature. From the launch of our roof based bee apiary last year, our mission for 2012 is to help our shoppers understand the beauty of nature and how they can help wildlife in their own home. Hopefully our Butterfly awareness day gave our shoppers a little reminder that simple easy steps can make a huge difference to nature."
